About the Canadian Automotive Museum

The Canadian Automotive Museum was incorporated in October 1964 as a charitable, not-for-profit institution with a mission to promote the history of the Canadian automotive industry. The collection is displayed in a former Chevrolet/Oakland dealership dating to the early 1920s.

Vehicles on display range from a 1903 Redpath Messenger to a 1983 DeLorean. The main floor features the McDougald Collection comprised of European luxury and sports cars. On the second floor the Canadian Gallery traces the history of domestic production from the early 1900s through the Auto Pact of 1965.
